PERSPECTIVES ON WRITING

Series Editors, Susan H. McLeod and Rich Rice

The Perspectives on Writing series addresses writing studies in a broad sense. Consistent with the wide ranging approaches characteristic of teaching and scholarship in writing across the curriculum, the series presents works that take divergent perspectives on working as a writer, teaching writing, administering writing programs, and studying writing in its various forms.

The WAC Clearinghouse, Colorado State University Open Press, and University Press of Colorado are collaborating so that these books will be widely available through free digital distribution and low-cost print editions. The publishers and the Series editors are committed to the principle that knowledge should freely circulate. We see the opportunities that new technologies have for further democratizing knowledge. And we see that to share the power of writing is to share the means for all to articulate their needs, interest, and learning into the great experiment of literacy.

Acknowledgments

I wish to humbly thank so many people in my professional and personal life for helping me in the writing of this book. First, I thank my editors, Sue McLeod and Rich Rice, as well as Mike Palmquist, all of whom have been supportive, helpful, and thoughtful colleagues. I feel blessed to have such good people working to help my book become public. I thank my wife and partner, Kelly Inoue, for all of her labors each day that allow me to sit in peace and do the labors of writing and revising. And when I needed to just talk about an idea, she has always given me her ear and time. Along with those precious gifts, Kelly has given me her trust, love, and presence, things I could not live without, and are essential ingredients in my ability to write this book.

I'm thankful to several colleagues who read earlier versions of this book, Chris Knaus from University of Washington, Tacoma, my brother in antiracist work, and Norbert Elliot, a friend, colleague, and always careful, kind reader. I extend a special thank you to Virginia (Gin) Schwartz, a Ph.D. student at the University of Wisconsin and long-time grading contract user, who read an earlier version of the book and gave me valuable and extensive, page by page, comments and ideas. She was an important part of making this book possible in its current form. Of course, I'm also, as always, thankful and grateful to my mentor, Victor Villanueva, who still helps, guides, and supports me. He is my academic father, and often I am mindful of his gifts to me, gifts of time and presence, of words of encouragement and kindness, and sometimes, just a smile and laugh. I am indebted to the two anonymous reviewers of the book, who each read thoughtfully, carefully, and compassionately, providing me with insightful and helpful suggestions, many of which I took, particularly in rethinking parts of the Introduction and the order of the last few chapters.

And lastly, I wish to thank all of my students at California State University, Fresno, and the University of Washington, Tacoma, for helping me with my labor-based grading contracts over the years. This book has been at least ten years in the making, and that labor started and ended in my classrooms, places that required open, compassionate students to help me think, labor alongside them, and do our social justice work together. My students have been, and continue to be, my main source of encouragement, inspiration, and joy. Thank you.
